Indian Leader Says 'Foul Wind Of War Blowing'

MOSCOW (AP)-Prime Minister Nehru of India talked for 21/2 hours with Soviet Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin Thursday and came out gloomy.

"Once again the foul winds of war are blowing. There are atomic tests and the world grows fearful." Nehru said.

"Once the door of war is opened, life on earth will be completely extinguished. It is strange that when man has the power to improve the lot of humanity and to open the doors of progress, the ghost of war should fall on us. I Wagner Takes cannot understand why man should do this.

Informal U.S., Soviet Berlin Talks Planned

Expected Probing Move Could Lead To Big Four Summit

LONDON (AP)-Western diplomats reported Thursday night the United States very soon will initiate informal talks with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis -talks which could lead to a Big Four summit meeting this year.

The American probing move is expected in Moscow by the weekend and would be undertaken on behalf of other Western powers, the diplomats said.

The informants said the approach is likely to be helped by the plea of 25 nonaligned nations, which, in the wake of their Belgrade conference, are calling on President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev to arrange a swift peace parley.

Cold War Goes To The Fair

The International Trade Fair at Zagreb, Yugoslavia, opening tomorrow, has been the scene of several notable cold war triumphs for the United States. Best remembered is the U.S. supermarket, which gave goods-hungry Eastern Europeans a glimpse of America's quantity and variety of processed foods. At the end of the 1957 fair the United States donated the entire stock to the Yugoslav Red Cross. Yugoslavia later developed supermarkets of its own in response to popular demand aroused by the exhibit.

Last year the United States exhibit featured a modern American drug fair, complete with soda fountain. More than 1,271,000 visitors jammed the U.S. pavilion.

To attract the crowds this year, the United States is relying on a wheel-less Aeromobile developed by Dr. William R. Bertelson of Neponset, Ill. The vehicle rides on a cushion of air driven downward by a multi-bladed fan. It made its world premiere in Tokyo last spring and then was moved to Turin for an appearance at another U.S. exhibition.

New American medical developments, including an industrial medicine center complete with closed-circuit television for surgery, form another important part of the exhibit. The inevitable fashion show also will help relieve the fair's general emphasis on machinery and other capital goods. No one in Washington seems to know what the Russians may be planning for their exhibit, but money is no object when the Soviets try to impress visitors to trade fairs, particularly the one at Zagreb, traditionally the most important staged by any East European

Brazil

It has become habitual to speak of two continents s though they contained only one country. Africa is complex. There was a time when the entire continent south of the United States was referred to as Spanish-America, which it was not. The largest state and in many respects the most important of South America is Brazil, principally Portuguese in language and Brazil is 3,300,000 square miles in size, the fourth largest country in the world. The people are mixed aborigines (called Indians), Portuguese, Negroes, Italians, Germans. The Portuguese never practised racial discrimination and therefore since 1500, there has been constant assimilation. It was the sugar cane which first interested the Portuguese in Brazil. They brought the cane from their native land and found that the soil of Pernambuco was suitable for this crop. During the 16th and 17th centuries, Brazil was the world's chief supplier of sugar. It was this crop which gave the country its economic start, but as there was insufficient labor, Negroes were imported from Africa.

The land-owners were extraordinarily rich and this attracted the attention of Europe. The French and the Dutch tried to establish themselves in Brazil but they did not last long.

In due course, gold, silver and diamonds were found in Brazil. At one time more than 40 per cent of the gold of the Earth was found in Brazil, Brazil became a republic in 1889 and has since suffered from considerable political disturbance. In 1930, Getulio Vargas, a strong man, became President and served until 1954 when, during a political crisis, he committed suicide. His place was taken by Juscelino Kubitschek in 1956. He was followed in 1961 by Janio Quadros who was elected by a popular vote, but who resigned a few weeks ago because he could not meet the pressures of inflation and popular dissatisfaction.

The future of Brazil depends upon the development of the interior, the vast Amazon basin, a region of great potential economic wealth. The principal crop of Brazil is presently coffee. President Kubitschek sought to vary the productivity of the country. One of his methods of opening the interior was the building of a new city, Brasilia, which serves as the capital of the country and from which modern roads run in all directions. In addition, air service has been developed beyond anything that could be expected in such a country.

To pay for all this, Brazil entered upon a program of wild inflation, the cruzeiro falling from 20 to the dollar to about between 220 to 240 to the dollar. It is the fall of the cruzeiro which is causing most of the trouble in Brazil at the present time and of which the Communists are taking full advantage.

The building of Brasilia is an excellent idea but the Brazilians have tried to fit a 50 year program into as many months. In fact, Brasilia, as it is laid out and as the buildings are going up, is the most modern, the most highly developed city in the world. The creation of Brasilia has in no manner interfered with the growth of Rio de Janeiro or Sao Paulo. In fact, all of Brazil is on a costly building spree. The potentialities of this country are beyond imagination. Brazil is rich in all minerals, in food products, in woodlands.

The present revolution could, of course, arrest Brazil's development. This struggle is between Left Wing groups associated with Cuba and Red China and the conservative military forces of the country. The Left Wing elements are associated with Castro and their victory would extend Castro's influence throughout South America. Should the military prevail, they will be forced to establish some type of dictatorship to hold the country together and to resist Communist influences.

To keep the Soviet world out of Brazil, it is essential for the United States to act swiftly. Brazil borders on Colombia, Peru, Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina, Venezuela and the Guianas. A basic political and ideological change in Brazil cannot but affect all these Brazil, like all the countries of Latin America, is intensely Roman Catholic. This leads to the false conclusion that Left Wing efforts cannot prevail in such a country. The evidence is to the contrary, namely, Left Wing revolutions of varying intensity have developed in the countries where Roman Catholicism is most deeply entrenched.

Pearson Says Russia, United States Should Agree To Cooling-Off Period

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of e cable to Nikita Khrushchev regarding nuclear testing.)

> WASHINGTON September 6, 1961

Dear Mr. Khrushchev: Following our talks on the Black Sea, I reported the details of our conversation to President Kennedy

At about twenty minutes before I saw him, he had received word that you were resuming the testing of nuclear weapons. Naturally he was upset. He was upset not only because of the increased obstacle this placed in the path of American-Soviet understanding, but because of the health hazard to his own two children and to the children of the world.

When I gave him your message, therefore, that "if the United States and the Soviet Union stand together no other country in the world can ever make war." his reaction was dimmed by the very real worry, as he expressed it that history might record "Khrushchev and Kennedy as having brought the world to nuclear war.

After leaving President Kennedy I picked up my second eldest grandson, aged eleven. I was one hour late in meeting him. I could not explain why I was late, however, because I did not want him to know what he might face and all the other little boys and girls in the world will face if nuclear testing is continued. Khrushchev's Grandsons

When I visited you at your Black Sea home I had the pleasure of meeting two of your grandsons, Nikita I and Nikita II. They were just like my grandsons, lively, cheerful, completely innocent of what the world may have in store for them. Especially they were innocent of the fact that the world of the future, if nuclear tests continue, will be charged with strontium 90 which warps the bones and brings cancer to young children.

You have, I think you told me, eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. You do not, I am sure, want them to grow up in a world charged with that kind of poison

When the U-2 flew over Russia in May 1960, you protested that was illegal. And you were right. But the U-2 was only an It was not observation plane. spreading poison. How much more illegal it is to poison the atmosphere of neighboring countries-of Japan, Norway, Sweden, much of Asia and Europe-countries which cannot erect barriers against the winds which carry radioactive fallout.

If it is true, as reported, that the Red Army induced you to resume nuclear testing, then I recall various cases when you have overruled the Red Army. Or if it is true, as reported, that the resumption of nuclear testing is for the purpose of pressuring Kennedy on Berlin, then please remember our conversation regarding some of the political forces in the United States.

I explained to you some of President Kennedy's political problems-the opposition of the extreme right, the growth of the John Birch Society, and the fact that the more you in the Soviet pressure him, the more difficult it becomes for him to settle the Berlin question. Because it then looks as if he was surrendering

Don't Undermine Moderates

Some Soviet writers have expressed concern that a right wing or fascist leader might take over our government and then make war on the Soviet Union. I don't believe that will happen. But if it does happen, it will be because you have pushed the moderate forces of government too far, forces which sincerely want peace. If you undermine moderates such as Kennedy, if you weaken his position, then the danger of war becomes grave in-

This is what I tried to explain during our talks. I told you that Kennedy was a man with a "dobro czertzi" (good heart), a man who suffered greatly during (Copyright, 1961, By The Bell Syndicate)

understanding of human problems, and who doesn't want another war

You will find this is true if you cooperate with him, rather than go to extremes in pressuring him. I think I know the American people. And I can tell you that the great majority would not want to go to war over Berlin, but they would go to war to defend their President if they felt he was being kicked around I was impressed with the story you told me about the father who forgot his son had grown up, and who still tried to take him by the ear and boss him around. I agree with you that no nation wants to be bossed around. And I suspect that you and President Kennedy are much nearer to agreement regarding Berlin than you realize if the air was not filled with notes and counter-notes, demands and counter-demands 30-Day Cool-Off

To that end I would like to suggest that you agree to a thirtyday cooling-off period during which neither side makes any more statements, neither side makes any military moves, and during which you reconsider the question of nuclear testing. During that period, I also suggest that both countries emphasize the constructive cooperation they have enjoyed in the past. You told me that you would be willing to have shown on Soviet TV the film of American sailors sunk by Nazi subs as they brought supplies to Murmansk, and of the jeeps and artillery and planes brought through Iran to aid the Soviet in World War II. Why not show this during the thirty-day period? And simultaneously let the United States show the films of Russia's heroic struggle at Stalingrad, Leningrad and Kursk.

Those were days in which our two countries fought side by side against a common enemy. It was the American Army and the Red Army which took Berlin. During this thirty-day period, therefore, let the foreign ministers of the two countries responsible for taking Berlin - the USA and the USSR-meet together quietly at some neutral spot and get the problem of Berlin settled. What they decide, the other powers must necessarily agree to.

This is just the suggestion of a private American citizen who recently spent some time with you and who was convinced that despite your apparent misunderstanding of the American President and American psychology, you meant it when you told me. over and over again, that you do not want war.

Sincerely Yours. DREW PEARSON

Hypocrisy Of 'Non-Aligned' Nations Exposed

WASHINGTON - Maybe the 25 so-called "non-aligned" nations thought they were building up their prestige by their "summit" conference just held at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, but the truth is they gave the world an example of why double-dealing doesn't pay. This group of nations can hardly be called "neutral," for they do take a position on issues which affect them directly. They cannot truly describe themselves as "non-aligned" because they have for the most part sought favors, financial and otherwise, from both sides - the East and the

The 25 nations sought to give the impression that they are not only against war but have become the chief exponents of all that is good and virtuous in international relations. The sad fact is, however, that when the Soviet Union broke faith with the world and abandoned its pledges that it would not resume nuclear tests unless the West did so first, the voices of protest from the "nonaligned" group were soft and almost inaudible. It was indeed proof that they were "aligned" with the Soviets. For they failed to denounce the steps taken by Moscow-three nuclear tests in the air-during the very time the "non-aligned" nations were actually in conference at Belgrade.

Former President Truman, who is by no means inarticulate on these matters, put it this way:

"The only thing that pleases me is the jolt the Neutralists got. They got what's coming to them. They ought to take sides with the free world if they're going to survive. They're free now because we made them free. The Russians didn't do that. All the satellites they (the Russians) took after World War II are slave states now. You name one that isn't."

The conference of the "non-aligned" was, however, a useful event in one respect. It exposed the hypocrisy of the "uncommitted" nations. They are "uncommitted" primarily because they want to derive benefits from both sides-the East and the West. But when the subsidies and donations and grants are added up, it will be found that these nations got many times more from the United States and its allies than from the

The impression made here by the Belgrade Conference is a painful one. Officials in Washington were shocked to note that, in the resolutions adopted, there was no denunciation of the Soviets for resuming nuclear tests in the air. Despite all the talk by Nehru of India about the importance of preserving peace, he himself was restrained in his comments.

The mission of President Sukarno of Indonesia and President Keita of Mali, in coming to Washington on a special trip to persuade President Kennedy to negotiate with Khrushchev at a 'summit' conference, is something of an anticlimax.

Here was a group of nations which profess to be against war and especially against colonialism. Yet they fail to stand up to the biggest practitioner of colonialism in the modern world-the Soviet Union. If ever a moral issue has presented itself to challenge the peace-loving elements of the whole world, it is in the POOR PEDESTRIAN! - Perhaps the most apt definition of a pedestrian is a driver who has parked his car. But the other day, someone actually did speak up for him, and he was a traffic engineer at that.

It has kept us together for a long time. We left London Airport at 7 p. m. and the big bird lifted off, tucked its rubber legs in, and turned west for New York. An hour later, we were 50 miles south of Skibereen, Ireland. On the trip west, the traveler gains Confusing? Of course. So was the sunset. It seemed to go on forever. At midnight - we were still on London time - the plane was passing Newfoundland and, as the captain made a slight change to the left, the golden light of the sun flooded the cabin.

Off Massachusetts, as our watches read 1:30 a. m. the last of the light in the west began to fade. To the people far below, the time was 8:30 p. m. We were still playing gin and talking about our trip to Europe as the light flickered on: "No fumare."

We rented a car and drove to the Danube for lunch. Afterward, daddyo got lost. We found a Viennese man standing beside a parked car. We spoke no German; he spoke no English. It was just peachy. In Italy, the waiters will not enter a room without knocking and saying: "Permisso?" I used to say "Permisso" back to them, but Mrs. B. found out that the proper reply is "Avante!" She used the one word so well that she was still saying it in Spain, where the waiters thought we were cracked.

Everybody, including some expatriated American writers, knows that the living is easy in Spain. It's so cheap that I felt ashamed. In Botin's restaurant, for example, each of us had a whole roast of baby pork, done in a fireplace over logs, vegetables, dessert, soup, and wine. Botin's in one of the best places in Madrid.

The bill, with tip, was $3.40. We rode from the Ritz Hotel, on one side of Madrid, all the way across the city to the bullring. The taxi fare was, in our money, $1.07. A big bottle of good perfume was $4. A man can pick out a bolt of material and get a suit custom made in 48 hours for $50.

I saw an ad in an English language newspaper. It said: "Villa on the edge of the Sea. Fourteen rooms. Five Baths. Completely furnished. Servants guarters. Swimming pool. With servants, $200 a month.

London is expensive. So is Berlin. In Italy, everything from hotels to hats is graded: first class. second class, third class. You pay according to the class you prefer. Heidelberg has the prettiest natural scenery. Rome is the most entrancing city. I've seen it before and I hope to see it again. Rome is an exquisite lady; Paris is a painted striptease.

These things were going through my mind as the light faded from the sky and the big jet turned down its fans and began to settle through the clouds toward New York. The DC-8 made its final turn and, like a huge silver bat, headed for the amber necklaces of lights ahead.

Kelly put the cards away and took my hand. "Now we will see the children," she said. Two big ones. Two little ones. That's why it's always so good to get away, and such a joy to get home. . .

Many Changes Made In Treatment Of Stroke

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

In the fifth inning he pitched blindfolded from second base. struck out one, walked one and forced another batsmen to pop up. The area all-stars obtained only three hits while The King and His Court had four safeties during the 7-inning contest. The fans marveled at Feigner's speed and his repertoire of pitches and after Eddie announced over the P.A. system that his team had to hustle to get to Altoona, Pa., for another game yesterday, he struck out the side on nine pitches in the final frame.

Feigner belted a two-run homer to right-center for the visitors' tallies in the second while Jim Eckard tied it up in the 6th with a circuit belt to right after a teammate had walked.

Junior Breisford, Vernon Lowery and Rich Smith shared pitching honors for the home team with Ronnie Cage and Regis Fair handling the catching chores.

The King and His Court won at Altoona last night, 3-0, playing before a crowd of 800 following a torrential downpour that left the field in a muddy condition.

Jockey Bill Hartack's first ride in the Belmont Stakes resulted in a victory. He won the 1960 race with Celtic Ash.
